

Joseph P. Mooney

President Integrity Fab and Machine/Integrity Printing

After babysitting, delivering papers and mowing lawns, I started my official work career, (in that I was having taxes withheld from my pay) in 1974 at age 10, working for City Recreation scorekeeping baseball and softball games. I was later fortunate to work at both McDonalds' and WW Grainger to learn two distinct forms of logistics. In 1984, I was again blessed, and was hired as a 'seasonal' employee for UPS. It was not my intention to stay at UPS for 25 years, but I've made a career out of being very lucky. In those 25 years, I was very blessed to work in Operations, Business Development, Political affairs, Industrial Engineering, Accounting and Marketing. Learning the breadth of a Fortune 500 company was pivotal in my professional development. I gained a great deal of business knowledge when working in a Region and then the Corporate office of UPS. Then in 2009, a company I had worked with while at UPS made me the "offer you can't refuse", and I became the President and COO of Marshall Distributing. Again. I was blessed to work with exceptional people in a very exciting market. My managerial acumen was sharpened as was my depth of I.T. knowledge. In late 2014 Marshalls was sold and God intervened on my behalf yet again. I became the COO of Amigo Mobility through 2018. We had a phenomenal team there, and we were fortunate to improve people's lives through mobility every day. In the fall of 2018, I became the President of Integrity Printing, and then in 2021 I also became the President of Integrity Fab and Machine. I am fortunate to have the support of both boards, and we are building a special team that delivers quality to our customers.

The list of mentors in my career is long. Those special influences started early at home. Mom was nothing short of amazing. She taught me the right thing and hard thing are usually the same thing. My brother Jim was a dad when he didn't have to be. My Uncle John became my hero and father figure as well. We were blessed with an absolutely incredible group of aunts and uncles for role models who I am thankful for every day. I also had a special relationship with John Harris and Gerry Carey. They treated me like their son when they didn't have to. Their mentoring was truly a blessing. I believe to my core that I am an example of someone who was willing to roll up his sleeves and work every day, but my success is truly because of those I have had (and have) the great fortune to work with. I recognize those people as absolute blessings from God. Being born into a pretty amazing gene pool and then being raised in a loving household with siblings that are still my heroes today, certainly made for an impossibly fantastic foundation for success. Then in 1990, I married my biggest mentor.... and best friend, Becky. She is the rock on which my career is built. She works harder than anybody I have ever met, and she inspires me to strive for constant improvement in all that I do.

My career thus far, like our children and our marriage, has been amazing, in spite of my influence.
